I graduated from Colorado Women's College and married Randy in 1967.

I was a teacher in the Denver Public Schools until 1975, teaching English and Beginning German in a middle school. I was a stay-at-home mom until 1984, when I went to work in the office of an electric utility just south of Denver. In 1993 I became an administrative assistant at an investment firm.

In April 2001 Randy and I moved to Istanbul, Turkey, as volunteers with Operation Mobilization, an international Christian mission organization. Our role was to provide hospitality to groups arriving in Istanbul to give Christian concerts in various cities in Turkey. After five months we moved to Bursa, Turkey, where I helped with office duties and personnel for OM. We were delighted to return to the USA in 2011. We spend our time maintaining two houses and visiting family and friends.
