After graduating from South Salem High, I attended Oregon State University and graduated in Electrical Engineering. I married my wife, Sharon in 1966, during my senior year and then moved to Baltimore, Maryland in 1967. There I worked for Westinghouse Defense Systems on military aircraft systems. I received my Masters in Electrical Engineering from John's Hopkins University in 1972.

Our two children were born in Maryland, and in 1974 we moved to San Jose, California where I worked for Kaiser Electronics on cockpit display systems.

In 1979, we finally made it back to the northwest when I went to work for Eldec Corporation in Seattle, where I was General Manager of their Power Systems Division. Eldec supplies power systems for aircraft avionics throughout the free world. In 1991 I decided to change careers and became Sr. Vice President and CFO for Finance at Northwest University in Kirkland, Washington, where I retired in 2012.

We have two children, Mischelle and Mark, who live within an hour of us, and two grandchildren, Parker and Lauren Schimelpfenig that we get to see quite often. (Photo here is me with Parker.)

Since retirement, Sharon and I have traveled, fished and enjoyed grandchildren in this start of our retirement. We plan to do more travel, both driving and cruising, and volunteer work.
