

KATHY HALL HIGHCOVE

E-mail: khighcove@gmail.com

Children: Glenn, Laura and Sarah

Granddaughter: Nikki

Kathy Hall Highcove has an obsession: writing. In recent years she has written and published non-fiction and short fiction pieces, and tries to write a short fiction piece every week.

"A writer has to exercise that writing 'muscle' to keep it supple and toned," she says. "My stories are inspired by experiences and interactions in my daily life."

She enjoys membership in the International Writers Workshop and occasionally writes book reviews for the Internet Book Blog. Until recently, she was a member of the San Fernando Valley branch of the California Writers Club, and served for five years as the editor of The Valley Scribe. Currently Kathy has branched out into content editing for her publishing acquaintances.

Kathy and husband Joe have lived in Woodland Hills, a suburb of Los Angeles, for four decades. Her son and two daughters live nearby. So far, one grandchild: Nikki, who'll be three in October.

